Government of Western Australia
Department for Child Protection

The Advocate for Children in Care

The Department for Child Protection wants to protect and promote the interests of children and young people in care, and the Advocate for Children in Care is there especially for you.

Values:

- You're important.
- It's your right to be heard.
- It's your right to have a say in decisions that affect your life.
- It's your right to challenge things if you think they're wrong.
- It's your right to complain when you're not happy with the Department.
- Your experience and suggestions can help the Department to develop policies and programs that give the best results for children and young people in care.

Who or what is the Advocate for Children in Care?

The Advocate for Children in Care is there especially for children and young people in the care of the Department.

Judy Garsed is the Advocate, and is available to talk with you by phone or email, or to meet with you - whatever you prefer.

You can bring someone you trust with you if you want to, and if you need an interpreter, it can be arranged.

What can the Advocate for Children in Care do for me?

The Advocate is there to help when you have problems or worries you can't sort out with your case worker.

Do you want help to have your say, get information, or have a departmental decision reviewed?

Maybe you want to know more about your rights or how you can participate in making decisions about your life?

Maybe you want to make a complaint?

Maybe you have ideas and suggestions about how the Department can do things better for children and young people in care?
